Strings and surfaces

Ulrike Tillmann

Isaac Newton Institute, Cambridge

Surfaces, and manifolds more generally, are fundamental objects in geometry and topology. It is surprising how rich the study of surfaces is and how much we still don't know. In this talk, directed at undergraduates, will look at how ideas physics, in particular from quantum field theory and string theory, have inspired mathematicians to have a fresh look.